M.Ed. in Special Education Teacher of Students With Disabilities (K-12)

Follow Your Calling To Become a Special Educator: Master's-Level Special Education Degrees

Wilmington University's master's-level special education degree programs often attract candidates with a deep capacity for compassion who can also "creatively think on their feet" — beneficial qualities for teachers of children with exceptionalities. With a variety of degree program options, candidates can choose which path best aligns with their specific career goals, including licensed and non-licensed positions.

Content- and Experience-Rich Courses

Under the direction of engaged, experienced special educators, you will learn proven-effective, research-based practices that will help you make ethical decisions and meet the diverse needs of your individual students. Experiential learning in real classrooms makes WilmU College of Education and Liberal Arts graduates job-ready from their first day.

Accredited Programs That Adhere to the Highest Standards

WilmU's College of Education and Liberal Arts is accredited by the Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation (CAEP) and offers programs that are recognized by the Council for Exceptional Children.

Tailored to Your Career Goals

Programs are available for individuals seeking initial certification/state licensure, K-12 classroom teachers seeking instructional strategies to provide individualized instruction in their classrooms, and other educators who are not seeking licensure/certification.
