Enhance Your Role as an Educator: Non-Licensure Graduate Education Degrees

Wilmington University's suite of non-licensure master's degrees in education is designed for licensed teachers looking to deepen their skills and increase their career opportunities. Programs focus on elevating your instruction skills in specific areas or deepening your expertise in educational technology. The programs may also appeal to bachelor's degree holders who seek to work in educational positions that do not require state licensure/certification.

Theory and Practice Combine in Well-Rounded Programs

Whether your goal is to create digital-rich learning environments, to advance culturally diverse literary instruction, to explore best practices for curriculum development and instructional planning or to develop the nuanced skills needed to teach students with exceptionalities, you'll study proven-effective, research-based practices that nurture excellence in instruction and assessment.

Accredited Education Programs With Optimum Flexibility

WilmU's College of Education and Liberal Arts is accredited by the Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation (CAEP). With flexible course schedules — including online options — and affordable tuition, these master's-level education degrees fit your schedule and your budget.

The Choice of Top Educators
